We have three huts in the middle of the forest. The capacity of each cabin is for two people with double bed or twin beds . We can introduce a small bed for a child (a).

The cabins have an outside rustical construction since we want you to know the material used in the area for building, bamboo, volcanic stones and clay tiles. However, inside they are very pretty, with wooden floor and walls. There are no air conditioning because the huts have their natural ventilation.

This is the aspect of the cabins on the inside. They have three windows, each with strainer for protection against mosquitoes. It is very rare that we have mosquitoes but sometimes they proliferate and then the bed is equipped with their nets. The cabin has its own bathroom and toilet, as well as a small desk. On the outside, rocking chairs and a hammock
